VERIFIED COMPLAINT FOR TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER AND PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

The United States of America, by its attorneys, Zane David Memeger, United States Attorney, and Assistant United States Attorneys Michael S. Blume and Stacey L. B. Smith, brings this civil action under the Anti-Fraud Injunction Statute, 18 U.S.C. § 1345. In support of its Verified Complaint, the United States respectfully alleges as follows:

1. This is a civil action brought by the United States to enjoin defendants DeMarco REI, Inc., OPM Group, LLC, and Anthony J. DeMarco, III, from committing further mail fraud and banking law violations, in connection with a home foreclosure rescue scam; prevent the disposition of property obtained as a result of the defendants' banking law violations; and take other necessary actions to prevent continuing and substantial injury to victims of the fraud.

2. The defendants are real estate companies and its principal that purported to help homeowners in danger of losing their homes to foreclosure. The defendants would scour public records filings to find individuals in financial distress. They would then approach these individuals and pitch a solution. The pitch – a “sale-leaseback” arrangement – was that the real estate company would buy the homeowner's house. The homeowner would remain in the house, but pay rent to the real estate company. When the homeowner got back on his or her feet financially, the homeowner could re-purchase the house.

3. In fact, the pitch and the sale-leaseback arrangement were a fraud. If a homeowner agreed to the arrangement, he or she would sell the house to a “straw” party, not the real estate company. The financial documents supporting that sale and the mortgage obtained to finance the sale were often, if not invariably, doctored. The real estate company would forge signatures, create falsified employment and income verification documents, misrepresent the flow of cash, and misstate material facts on loan applications. After the sale, the real estate company would mishandle rental payments. Homeowners – now renting from the “straw” parties – would mail their rent payments to the real estate company. The real estate company generally would not, however, use the rental payments to make the monthly payments on the mortgages on the houses. Instead, the principal of the real estate company would siphon off the funds from the rental payments and use those funds for his own purposes. As the mortgages fell into default, the real estate company would then mislead the lending companies as to the reasons for those defaults in an attempt to satisfy the mortgages on favorable terms and to keep the fraudulent scheme alive.

4. The defendants entered into approximately 120 sale-leaseback arrangements. The bulk of the 120 properties are in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Other properties are located in California, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, and Maine. Many of the properties have already been foreclosed upon, but all of the remaining properties are in danger of foreclosure. The victims of the fraud are in danger of losing their homes.

5. The United States seeks relief that will extend beyond the parties to reach the homeowners, the “straw” purchasers, and the mortgage lenders. One purpose of the action is to bring all the individuals and entities that have a stake in the properties before the Court to create an orderly process by which the damage caused by the defendants' fraud can be mitigated. That process, sanctioned by the applicable statutes, will mean that non-party, non-defendants should be enjoined from engaging in any transactions that will affect the properties at issue here.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

6. This Complaint is brought by the United States for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction and other equitable relief pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1345. The action is brought to enjoin fraud and the disposition of illegally obtained property based upon probable cause of violations of the federal mail fraud statute (18 U.S.C. § 1341), which violations affect financial institutions and continue to harm individuals. The United States seeks to enjoin the defendants, the "straw" parties, and the relevant mortgagees, from selling, transferring, encumbering, impairing, alienating or otherwise disposing of, in any manner, the properties listed in Exhibit A. The United States also seeks to prevent the defendants, their agents, officers, and employees, and all persons in active concert or participation with them from committing further mail fraud and banking law violations and, seeks any other action the Court deems necessary to prevent a continuing and substantial injury to the victims of the fraud.

7. The Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1345 and 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1345.

8. The Court has personal jurisdiction over the defendants and venue is proper in this District pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1391(b) and 1391(c) as all the defendants either reside in this District or did business in this District, and defendants' actions that gave rise to this complaint all occurred in this District.

PARTIES

9. Plaintiff is the United States of America.

10. Defendant DeMarco REI, Inc. is a Pennsylvania corporation with a principal place of business at 1500 J.F.K. Boulevard, Suite 222, Philadelphia, PA 19102.

11. Defendant OPM Group, LLC is a business entity with a principal place of business at 640 Freedom Road, Suite 201, King of Prussia, PA 19406.

12. Defendant Anthony J. DeMarco, III, is currently a Pennsylvania resident. While for some time DeMarco was a New Jersey resident, during most of the time that the events described in the Verified Complaint occurred, DeMarco was a resident of Pennsylvania, living in this District. He founded DeMarco REI and was its President and Chief Executive Officer. DeMarco also founded OPM Group, LLC and is its principal.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The Fraudulent Scheme

13. The fraud at issue began at DeMarco REI, Inc. (hereafter "DeMarco REI").

14. Anthony J. DeMarco, III (hereafter "DeMarco") founded DeMarco REI in 2006.

The company sold itself as able to help homeowners in financial distress save their homes.

15. Employees of DeMarco REI found potential clients by examining public records. From these public records, the employees could identify properties that were subject to mortgage foreclosure actions. The employees would then contact the owners of these properties, by telephone or through the mails, to offer DeMarco REI's services.

16. The employees would explain DeMarco REI's services to potential clients as follows. DeMarco REI would purchase the house from the homeowner, thereby paying off the outstanding mortgage. The homeowner would stay in the house, but pay rent to DeMarco REI. After a year, the homeowner could purchase the house back from DeMarco REI. If there was equity in the house at the time of the sale – that is, if the value of the house exceeded the outstanding principal on the mortgage – DeMarco REI would put that money into escrow for the homeowner, either to use as rental payments if necessary or to return to the homeowner at the time of the re-purchase. The DeMarco REI company line held that 20-25% of the homeowners who worked with the company bought their homes back.

17. The sales pitch outlined above was not true. The actual transactions that DeMarco REI would conduct were very different from the pitched transactions.

18. First, DeMarco REI did not purchase the house from the homeowner. Rather, DeMarco REI recruited people who could act as straw purchasers of the houses. The company advertised in various newspapers, touting a real estate investment opportunity. Individuals who responded were told that they would be helping out homeowners in financial distress. The investors would let DeMarco REI use their good credit to obtain mortgages to buy the houses from these homeowners. The homeowners would stay in the houses and pay rent to DeMarco REI, which, in turn, would pay for the mortgages. It was the investors, not DeMarco REI, who now owned the houses of the DeMarco REI clients. For their trouble, the investors would get a fee – sometimes $5,000, sometimes $7,500 – from DeMarco REI for each transaction.

19. Second, the sales transactions – from the homeowner to the investor – were riddled with fraudulent documents. As matter of course, DeMarco REI employees falsified the documents associated with the sales transactions. It was routine for the employees to engage in the following fraud:

a. DeMarco REI employees filled out mortgage loan applications using false income and employment information and submitted those applications to lenders for loans to finance the sales from the homeowners to the investors.

b. To support the false income and employment information on the loan applications, DeMarco REI employees created false verification documents (e.g., pay stubs, bank statements, investment account statements) on company computers. These false documents were also submitted to lenders.

c. DeMarco REI employees commonly forged the signatures of homeowners and investors alike on real estate and mortgage transaction documents. They used a clever system of placing two strips of Scotch tape over a legitimate signature, tracing the signature, removing the top strip, applying that strip to a separate document, and photocopying the document.

d. DeMarco REI employees hid from lenders the fact that the investors were purchasing multiple houses, a risky venture. An investor typically acted as a straw purchaser of several houses. The DeMarco REI employees made sure that, when an investor bought more than one house, the several transactions all occurred within a very short time frame. That way, the DeMarco REI employees could falsely tell each lender that the investor was only purchasing one house – a less risky proposition – without the lenders learning of the other purchases. The close together transactions would not appear in public records in time for lenders to learn of them during their due diligence.

e. DeMarco REI employees prepared paper work purporting to show that the investors brought cash to the real estate closings. Bringing cash to the real estate closings was a necessary element of any mortgage loan because the lenders wanted to ensure, in part, that the borrowers had the financial ability to repay the loans. The investors, in fact, put no money into the deals at all. To the contrary, they got money out of the deals.

f. DeMarco REI employees prepared fake leases to include in the loan application packages. Aware that the house purchases were for investment purposes, the lenders wanted to know whether the houses would generate income, thereby making it more likely that the borrowers would be able to repay the loans. DeMarco REI employees therefore created fake leases, using fake names for the renters (but actual property addresses – of former residences of friends or family, or of residences the employees found on the internet). The employees then submitted those fake leases to the lenders to support the loan applications.

20. Lenders relied on the false information DeMarco REI employees provided to them. They therefore issued mortgage loans that they otherwise would not have issued, had they known the truth about the transactions.

21. Third, DeMarco REI misused rental payments. As homeowners made the rental payments – by mail or in person – DeMarco REI deposited them in a company bank account. That money was meant to pay the mortgages on the loans that financed the sale of the houses from the homeowners to the investors. Rather than making the monthly mortgage payments, however, DeMarco REI used the money from the rental payments for other purposes. For example, the money paid for DeMarco's lavish lifestyle, which included a high-end apartment and luxury cars.

22. Fourth, DeMarco REI never created any escrow accounts for the homeowners. To the extent that the sales transaction from the homeowner to the investor yielded equity – that is, to the extent the sale price exceeded any outstanding loan balance – the excess money went into a DeMarco REI company bank account. That money was not held in escrow or segregated in any way. Instead, that money was used to pay for DeMarco's lavish lifestyle.

23. Fifth, no homeowner re-purchased his or her house from DeMarco REI. Contrary to the company's sales pitch, there was not a 20-25% success rate for the company's clients. In fact, not a single client was able to re-purchase his or her house.

24. One family – M.S. and L.S. – did acquire the wherewithal to re-purchase their house, but DeMarco victimized them even further. The family obtained a large cash settlement in connection with litigation. The family wanted to use some of the settlement proceeds to re-purchase their house from DeMarco REI. They contacted DeMarco himself, who advised them to wire the money to him at a special bank account. The family believed that, by doing so, they would pay off whatever debt they may have owed and that they would have their house returned to them. They wired the money, as DeMarco instructed. DeMarco withdrew the money, went to a luxury sports car dealer, and purchased a Ferrari for himself. He did not pay off any debt the family owed; he did not return their house to them. DeMarco has since sold the car and dissipated the assets.

25. DeMarco himself conceived of the sale-leaseback arrangements. DeMarco also directed DeMarco REI employees to engage in the fraudulent conduct described herein.

The Affected Properties

26. DeMarco REI engineered approximately 120 sale-leaseback transactions. Upon information and belief, Exhibit A contains a comprehensive list of those transactions. Exhibit A is incorporated herein as if fully set forth. Exhibit A identifies the transaction by property address, original homeowner, “straw purchaser” or investor name, lender, lender account number, and lender address. All of the lenders are financial institutions as defined by 18 U.S.C. § 20.

27. All of the loans identified on Exhibit A are in danger of foreclosure. In several instances, lenders have already instituted foreclosure proceedings on the loans.

Examples of DeMarco REI Transactions

28. A description of five DeMarco REI transactions will serve to illustrate the fraudulent scheme that victimized – and is continuing to victimize – homeowners.

a. A.B., who lived on Garden Lane in Bensalem, Pennsylvania, fell behind on his mortgage. A.B. is a trucker and mechanic who has faced some employment difficulties in recent years, having been laid off, rehired, then laid off again from one of the two jobs he works. He got a telephone call from a DeMarco REI employee who told A.B. that DeMarco REI could help him save his house. DeMarco REI arranged for A.B. to sell his house to S.R. in December 2008. For his trouble, S.R. got paid $4,000 from DeMarco REI. The sale from A.B. to S.R. would pay off the mortgage on A.B.’s house. A.B. would then rent the house from S.R. until A.B. could afford to purchase the house back. American Partners Bank, an affiliate of Waterfield Bank, provided the financing to S.R. to purchase the house. S.R. was unemployed at the time of the purchase; he had just lost his job. DeMarco REI took care of that problem by drafting a letter stating that S.R. worked for DeMarco REI earning a salary plus commission. DeMarco REI also told the lender, on the telephone, that S.R. worked at the company. And, DeMarco REI created a pay stub showing S.R.’s income from the company. None of it was true; S.R. never worked for DeMarco REI. At the time of the sale from A.B. to S.R., there was over $100,000 in equity in the house. DeMarco REI employees told A.B. that the company would create an escrow for A.B. to hold that equity. That escrow never existed. All of the equity in the house went to DeMarco; none went to A.B. A.B. lived in the house about a year after the sale to S.R.; he paid rent to DeMarco REI to do so. A.B. did fall behind on his rent and, in late 2009, S.R. evicted A.B. from his home.

b. P.H. is a school bus driver who lives on Glasgow Street in Stowe, Pennsylvania. She lives with her daughter, son-in-law, and grandson. She did not have a mortgage on her house. A few years ago, P.H. suffered some medical problems. Bills began to mount and she realized that she needed money to pay her creditors. DeMarco REI employees called her and told her the company could help. She needed about $40,000. Rather than re-financing the house – on which there was no mortgage – DeMarco REI arranged to sell the house from P.H. to M.B. P.H. did not understand that DeMarco REI had arranged to sell her house. Not until after she had signed all the papers did she realize that she had sold her house and that she was now a tenant. Flagstar Bank provided the financing used for the sale from P.H. to M.B. Loan paperwork stated that M.B. put up $54,000 to purchase the house and that he was going to live in the house as his primary residence. M.B. put no money into the house; rather, DeMarco REI paid him $4,000. And, he had no intention of ever living in the house; rather, it was to be rented to P.H. P.H. paid rent on her house by sending money to DeMarco REI. But, the mortgage payments somehow fell behind. The mortgage is now in default.

c. T.P. lived on 36th Avenue in Monroeville, New Jersey with her husband. T.P. lived in the house her entire life; she inherited it from her godmother. The deed to the house transferred to T.P. when she turned 21 in 2007. To pay for family bills, T.P. and her husband took out a mortgage on the house and then re-financed that mortgage. When T.P.'s husband was laid off from his job, the family fell behind on their mortgage payments. The lender began foreclosure proceedings. A DeMarco REI employee then called. He said that the company could arrange to sell their house to an investor and T.P. and her husband could stay in the house, pay rent, and then buy it back when they could afford to do so. DeMarco REI arranged to sell the house to S.R. DeMarco REI paid S.R. $4,000 for his role in the transaction. A loan from Freedom Mortgage financed the transaction. The mortgage loan application papers state that S.R. worked for DeMarco REI and that he had over $200,000 in a bank account. S.R. neither worked for DeMarco REI nor ever had close to $200,000 in any bank account. The application papers also stated that S.R. was going to purchase the house as an investment and lease it to R.J. The paper work even included a false lease from S.R. to R.J. meant to hide from the lender the fact that T.P. was going to stay in the house. With the equity from the house, DeMarco REI was to maintain a reserve for T.P. The company did no such thing. What is more, the settlement statement from the transaction indicated that S.R. brought over $50,000 to the closing and that T.P. received over $75,000. Neither happened. Instead, the $75,000 went to DeMarco REI, a fact not disclosed to the mortgage lender. T.P. paid rent to DeMarco REI each month.

d. S.W. lives on Tioga Street in Philadelphia. S.W. inherited the house from her grandmother. Putting a mortgage on the house, S.W. borrowed money to pay back taxes and accumulated debt. By late 2008, she was in financial distress, was unable to pay the mortgage, and was facing foreclosure. Her husband received a letter in the mail from DeMarco REI claiming that the company could help to save the house. S.W. agreed to the plan DeMarco REI suggested. She would sell the house – which would pay off the existing mortgage – and rent it from the new owner. Once she could afford to purchase the house, she could buy it back. In the transaction, S.W. sold the house to J.G. Although the settlement statement provided to the lender indicated that J.G. brought over $12,000 to the closing, J.G. did not put any money into the deal. Instead, she received $4,000 from DeMarco REI for her role in the transaction. AmTrust Bank provided the mortgage to finance the sale from S.W. to J.G. There was equity in the house of over $20,000. DeMarco REI promised that the equity would be held in reserve for S.W. On at least one occasion, S.W. asked for some of that money to help her pay her debts. DeMarco REI refused. S.W. began paying rent to DeMarco REI. She was current on her payments. Somehow, however, the mortgage on the property fell into default.

e. J.J. lives on Woodbine Road in Havertown, Pennsylvania. Laid off from his job and suffering from a back injury, J.J. fell behind on his mortgage. He faced foreclosure. A lawyer referred him to DeMarco REI. DeMarco REI would arrange to sell J.J.'s house. The sale would pay off the mortgage. J.J. could remain in the house and would pay rent. When J.J. got back on his feet financially, he could re-purchase the house. J.J. believed that DeMarco REI was going to purchase his house; in fact, D.V. was the buyer. Superior Home Mortgage provided the financing for D.V. to buy the house. The loan application papers stated that D.V. would live in the house as his primary residence. That statement was, of course, false. According to the settlement statement, D.V. brought over $25,000 to the closing and J.J. received over $74,000 – the equity in the house. Neither actually happened. In fact, the equity went right to DeMarco REI. And, the money that was supposed to come from D.V. actually came from DeMarco REI. After the sale, J.J. began to make rental payments to DeMarco REI. He continued those payments monthly, but J.J. soon learned that the mortgage on the house was again in foreclosure.

The mortgage is now held by Wells Fargo.

Involvement of OPM Group, LLC

29. Because of a dispute between DeMarco and his wife, B.T., in July 2009, DeMarco renounced any association he had with DeMarco REI. Upon information and belief, DeMarco REI's operations have ceased.

30. DeMarco then formed a new company, OPM Group, LLC (hereafter "OPM"). He recruited several former DeMarco REI employees to work with him at OPM.

31. Throughout 2009 and up until at least January 4, 2010, OPM employees, including DeMarco himself, contacted DeMarco REI clients by telephone and e-mail. OPM employees told these clients to mail their rental payments to OPM, rather than to DeMarco REI.

32. OPM managed a number of the properties involved in the fraud. DeMarco directed that "management," such as it was. OPM collected rental payments from the original homeowners of several of the properties listed on Exhibit A, but did not pay the mortgages on those properties, however. OPM took steps to attempt to evict original homeowners from several of the properties listed on Exhibit A. OPM also took steps to attempt to sell several of the properties listed on Exhibit A.

33. An example of one of the properties OPM managed is the house on Eastern Parkway in Irvington, New Jersey. L.S. owned the house in 2007 when she fell on financial hard times. Her mortgage was in default. That was when DeMarco REI contacted her. As with many other transactions it has conducted, DeMarco REI structured a sale of L.S.'s house to a "straw" purchaser, S.A. The sale occurred in September 2007. DeMarco REI took $83,742.55 from the sale as a "fee." That money was L.S.'s equity in the house. L.S. continued to live in the house and paid monthly rent. She paid that rent to DeMarco REI. Then, when DeMarco REI went out of business, L.S. began to send rental payments to OPM. Her most recent rental payment to OPM was in October 2009. She still pays rent, but does so into an escrow account. DeMarco himself has been in contact with L.S., promising that he can help her get her house back. The mortgage loan used to finance the 2007 sale is in foreclosure, and the current owner of the house, S.A.'s son, had been seeking to evict L.S.

34. OPM also engaged in transactions structured just like those of DeMarco REI. An example involves G.C. G.C. lives on Primrose Avenue in Philadelphia. She bought her home from the builder in 1959. G.C. and her husband raised four children in the house, one of whom still lives with her. She is retired; her husband passed away in 2000. As of 2005, the house was free and clear of any mortgages. G.C. needed some money; so she took out a loan. In recent years, because of medical problems and the bills associated with her care, G.C. fell behind on the mortgage. She received a foreclosure notice. That was when DeMarco contacted her, in August 2009. DeMarco told G.C. that he could help her avoid foreclosure. What she did not understand, was that she was about to sell her house to a "straw" purchaser, and then rent it back. The sale transaction closed in September 2009. In that sale, G.C. sold the house to J.M. The considerable equity from the house went straight to OPM. OPM received $97,000. She was required to pay rent of $1,000 to live in her home. As late as the week of January 4, 2010, a representative of OPM called G.C. and told her to mail those payments to OPM at an address in Philadelphia. G.C. has since passed away. Her family, which stood to inherit the property, is attempting to resolve her affairs. The property is due to be sold at Sheriff's Sale imminently.

The Effect of the Fraud Is Ongoing, and the Properties Are Being Disposed Of 35. Because most, if not all, of the mortgages on the properties listed on Exhibit A are in default, several of the mortgage lenders are instituting foreclosure actions. The actions would result in forcing the original homeowners out of their homes. For example, Sheriff's Sales had and have been scheduled for September, October, November, and December, 2010. The United States has been attempting to keep those sales from occurring.

36. Several of the investors, in attempts to remove themselves from the fraud, are attempting to sell or otherwise dispose of the properties that are in their names. In so doing, several of the investors are moving to evict the original homeowners from their homes.
